OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 20th, 1867.

The last week has been the most exciting one of the session. The two Houses have been grappling with the subject in right earnest. The House first essayed its powers in the business of reconstruction and at first seemed to have utterly failed. Every plan brought forward lacked a majority and was exceedingly unsatisfactory to most of the Republican members. The first project which seemed to unite the sound Republicans was the Louisiana bill, drawn up by Mr. Shellabarger, of Ohio, who was prominent in the New Orleans riot investigation. That bill provided for a loyal State Government in Louisiana and was sent over to the Senate by more than a two-third majority. Thad. Stevens then got his military bill (from the joint committee on Reconstruction) before the House. Many of its provisions were disliked. Some were considered unconstitutional by good Republican lawyers. The clause putting the duty of executing the bill into the hands of Gen. Grant was objected to by many persons. But under the previous question a large number of Republicans who did not like the bill were compelled to vote for it, and did so with the expectation that the Senate would strike out the objectionable features. They were correct in their expectations for the Senate greatly changed the bill. Mr. Williams, the Oregon Senator, had charge of the bill and showed much skill in the management of it. He was always courteous, even in the long night sessions, and under the fierce denunciations of such men as Doolittle and Saulsbury was not provoked into a reply. I do not mean to suggest that any attacks were made upon him, personally, but upon the measure which was under his charge. For three days he held the office of "leader of the Senate," and I speak the opinion of all Republican Senators when I say that he conducted the debate and managed the whole contest in a way that satisfied everybody.

It was most amusing to hear some of the speeches against the bill—as it would have been if they had not been so terribly dull. There were passages, however, worthy of immortal fame—in the annals of humorous writing. Poor, miserable, drunken Saulsbury spoke up to ten o'clock Saturday night and quoted scripture with the fluency of a martyr! He talked of Daniel in the den of lions and Shadrack, Meshech and Abednego in the fiery furnace! Under the proposed military law he said that if a rebel sought to pray three times a day he might expect to be put into a fiery furnace or eaten up by lions!

When the beautiful Sunday morning sunshine was pouring in upon the eastern portico of the Capitol, McDougall rose to speak. He was too sleepy and drunk to stay long upon his legs and to the great joy of the Senate he subsided in a short time and the final vote was taken. Just as I wrote the last line my eye fell upon an account in the Copperhead Baltimore Sun, and I see that from another standpoint than mine the speeches of Saulsbury and McDougall were "able efforts!"

"The debate yesterday and last night was principally confined to the minority, the Radicals thinking it unnecessary for them to waste any time. Mr. Saulsbury delivered a most powerful legal argument of five hours length against the bill, and very able efforts were also made by Messrs. Cowan, Davis and McDougall. After midnight Senators began to look very much worn out, as the session of the night before had extended long past that hour. Many betook themselves to the sofas, and lay stretched at full length, paying no attention to the speeches, and only 'coming to time' when the vote was taken on the many amendments which were offered. For an hour or two before the adjournment most every one on the floor was smoking.

After twelve o'clock the galleries were deserted, except by several groups of negroes, who seemed to be the only persons taking any interest in the proceedings, but as the small hours were away, one by one they succumbed to the god of sleep, and snored accompaniments to the speeches below.

Several hours before the adjournment the strain of such a lengthy, continuous session proved too much for the physical endurance of some, and Messrs. Yeaman, Sumner, Sprague and others went home, the three extremists mentioned being content to leave it to their friends to fight it out. When the vote was finally reached, more than six hours of the Sabbath day had been consumed."

For the sake of fair play I put this in, and advise your readers to believe what I say and not the account given by a Copperhead!

The House debated all day yesterday upon the Senate Reconstruction bill, Stevens, Boutwell and others leading off in a strain of a most violent denunciation of the measure. Boutwell declared it a bill "fraught with immense danger to the country." One could but wonder at the infatuation of thirty Republican Senators if such were the case, for they all voted for the bill. After Thad. Stevens had made his violent speech against, the bill, Garfield, from Ohio, made the remark, "If Jesus Christ were to walk into the Hall with all the effulgence of the Godhead, Thad. Stevens would object to the seams of his coat!" It was rather severe, but I do not know that it was unjust. Mr. Stevens desires always to have his own way and though he rarely obtains it he always insists upon it. The poor Democrats hardly know what to do. In all their votes, however, they readily came to the aid of Stevens and Boutwell, though those men were so bitterly attacking the President all the time.

The final vote was taken this morning at eleven o'clock and the bill was defeated. That is, it was sent back to the Senate.

Some foolish Republicans have been trying to patch up a compromise and their efforts have been noised abroad with such industry that the House has ordered an investigation into the subject, and in doing so has played the fool to perfection. It was done under the lead of John Wentworth of Chicago. The investigation is a blunder, and so was the attempt at a compromise. It began with the President. He sent for certain members and then and there pledged himself to sign a bill similar to the one passed by the Senate Tuesday morning, and yet I have not a doubt intended to do just the contrary when he made it. The stupidity of these compromises was in believing a word that the President said. He is the most unscrupulous liar in Washington, as can be easily proved. He talks one way to-day to a radical and to-morrow another way to a copperhead. It is annoying to what an extent he carries his duplicity. One good may result from this recent movement. He will so disgust the so-called Conservative-Republicans that they will be the fiercest for his impeachment. There are indications of this already in high quarters. The Evening Post, which is a Conservative-Republican journal threatens the President with impeachment if he does not join Congress in this righteous measure of reconstruction. I hear such men as Mr. Raymond talking in the same way. Banks of Mass., who has been sitting up a night with the President lately, begins to suspect that he has been cheated, and hints plainly at impeachment. If the President will not agree to a fair mode of reconstruction he will be removed. If the Supreme Court attempts to interfere with this question it too will be enlarged in such a manner as to secure acquiescence in the policy of the Government. The radicals have begun, and now upon a moderate and just platform are bound to go ahead with it to complete success.

The President has been in a singular state of mind during the last month. A friend who has seen him under various circumstances during that time, remarked to us: "He acts like a crazy man. At times he is scarcely defiant, but at others he is all broken down and whines piteously for fair treatment. The impeachment movement evidently has acted with tremendous force upon his nervous system. He fears it, and it is that fear which drove him to a compromise, or to attempt one. When he was in the midst of it Seward and Stansbery found it out, and ridiculed him out of it—or convinced themselves that they had done so. The final result will show who was cheated." I believe that this is a fair statement. Luckily, the President is not drinking much now. I am told that he takes no whiskey or brandy and confines himself to a little claret and champagne with his dinner. Some one tried to get some whiskey at the White House the other day and the reply was that none was kept in the house! If Senator Patterson gets all the whiskey he drinks outside, I am much mistaken.

The House is working very hard on the Tax and Tariff bills. There is a struggle upon the proposed new Tariff but I presume the protectionists will win. There will also be something of a contest on certain items in the Tax bill. There is a very strong feeling in the country in favor of modified taxation. People are grown down a little too hard, but Secretary McCulloch says the requirements of the Government during the next year will hardly permit of any important reduction.

STEAMER DAY.

By Overland Telegraph.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO MARCH 26.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—In the Senate, Wilson of Massachusetts, moved to request the House to return the resolution for adjournment, with a view to reconsider the vote on which it passed the Senate. He said he desired to fix a day between now and December, when a meeting of Congress can be called, if necessary. The motion was adopted.

Chandler, of Michigan, from Committee on Commerce, introduced a resolution authorizing the employment of five civil engineers to survey and improve the northwestern rivers and harbors. Passed.

Nye, of Nevada, presented a memorial from the Union League of Maryland, asking that the provisions of the Military Reconstruction bill be extended to Maryland. Referred.

Sherman, of Ohio, from the Committee on Finance, reported a bill to authorize additional examiners of the Patent Office, not to exceed four of each class, twelve in all. Passed.

Sherman also reported Joint Resolution passed by the House, prohibiting further payment of the claims of rebel owners for captured property now in the hands of the Treasury Department without the authority of law. The consideration of the resolution was postponed until December.

Chandler, of Michigan, moved to take up the bill to allow American citizens to sell vessels of war to friendly belligerents, and spoke at length in favor of the bill. He said he was willing to let the Alabama claims rest for the present. The bill was purely commercial and there should be no objection to its passage.

Morton, of Indiana, said the intent of the bill overthrew the very principle which formed the basis of the Alabama claims. Its passage would sanction American legislation before the world, and put it in the power of the pettiest nation to make war on the commerce of the greater.

Pending the consideration of the bill, Wilson, of Massachusetts, reported joint resolution authorizing the General of the army to permit traders to remain at certain posts, to accommodate persons crossing the plains. Passed.

Conness, of California, introduced a resolution asking information of the Secretary of the Interior as to the cause of the suspension of work on the Pacific Railroad, and what further legislation is necessary to secure the completion of the Pacific Railroad from Omaha westward. Adopted.

Morrill, of Maine, introduced a resolution of inquiry as to the expediency of removing the Indians in the States to Indian Territory. Adopted.

The House resolution for adjournment was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The Senate went into executive session and then adjourned.

In the House, bills were introduced and referred as follows: To provide a temporary government for the Territory of Lincoln; to repeal the act authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to retire $4,000,000 in greenbacks monthly; to provide for a ship canal around the falls of the Ohio river; to construct a ship canal from the Mississippi river to lake Michigan; to establish a national bureau of insurance; to grant land for the construction of railroads in Dacotah.

An act to change the location of the capital of Montana was passed.

Schenck, of Ohio, offered concurrent resolution to adjourn at noon on March 28, and assemble on the first Wednesday of May, June, September and November, unless the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House issue a proclamation ten days previous to either of these dates, declaring that there is no occasion for the meeting of Congress at that time. Adopted by a vote of 93 yeas to 81 nays.

The Speaker presented a letter from Collector Smythe requesting that he be allowed to appear before the Committee on Public Expenditures and produce witnesses in his own defense. The request was granted.

A resolution was adopted directing the Clerk of the House to present to the Secretary of State the supplemental reconstruction bill, for his approval.

Pike of Missouri, introduced a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to build two dredge boats for use at the mouth of the Mississippi.

Logan, of Illinois, offered a concurrent resolution directing that all amounts of money under the control of the Navy Department, not required for the expenses of the Department, be paid into the Treasury.

The report of the Secretary of the Navy shows that he has under his control an unexpended balance of $68,000,000 accumulated from the sale of various articles, besides $18,000,000 appropriated in the last naval appropriation bill, the aggregate being nearly $118,000,000.

Thomas, of Maryland, presented a memorial of the members of the Maryland Legislature asking the immediate consideration of Congress as to the condition of affairs in that State; also, resolutions of the Union League. Ordered to lie over.

The Senate deficiency appropriation bill was taken up, amended and passed.

The Senate concurrent resolution forbidding officers of the diplomatic service to wear court costumes was taken up. Covode, of Penn., offered an amendment providing that no person shall hold any court dress except it be made after a pattern drawn by the Chief Tailor of the Nation, who presides over its destinies. [Laughter.] The Speaker said the amendment was out of order. Other facetious amendments were offered, one, for providing the character of the uniform, creating much merriment. The previous question was then seconded and the resolution passed.

Donnelly of Minnesota offered a resolution that the House express its desire that the people of the rebellious States will, in reorganizing under existing laws, insert a provision in the respective State Constitutions requiring the legislature to establish a system of free schools adequate for the education of all children. Adopted. Adjourned.

City "Retrenchment"

The following is from the Daily Herald of August 3d, 1866

Another matter which might to be remedied is that of conferring the patronage of the city upon one office whose political columns shadow forth the belief of a majority of the members of the Council We believe the city should contract its printing and advertising as they do their street and other work Just before the new Council was elected the old members fearing the result of the coming election very hastily made some kind of a private contract with the OREGONIAN at a figure one-half less than they had previously been charging this same body Tadeny that there was no object in this, is to deny one of the most patent pieces of favoritism that has ever yet been practiced by any professing to be honest The officers whose printing must necessarily be done in the paper where the first notices is given, are charged the most exorbitant rates and there is no redress, until the property holders must pay no matter what the cost. Of those things the tax payers do, and have a right to complain, and it is their province to demand that the city patronage should be given to the lowest bidder

If these remarks urging that the city printing be given to the lowest bidder were pertinent and just at the time they were made, the recent action of the Council in refusing to submit the same work to competition for the present year, renders them equally pertinent and just at the present time. But there are several mis-statements in the above extract which we design to expose before proceeding to consider the case as now presented, as this method will help to give a correct idea of the whole matter.

It is untrue that the "Council last year, fearing the result of the coming election, very hastily made a contract with the OREGONIAN," to do the printing in order that the patronage might not be secured for the Herald The ordinance authorizing the Committee to contract with this paper to do the printing was passed on the 21st of February, 1866, almost one month before the first number of the Herald was issued—before it was even certain that that paper would appear, and four months before the city election. The OREGONIAN thus obtained the printing without meeting with competition, because at the time the Council authorized the contract to be made, there was no other daily paper in the city Nor is it true that the printing was then taken at half the former rates. There was, indeed, a small reduction in the rates, but this was made up by the greater number of insertions required under the new arrangement.

It will be seen that in the above extract the Herald asserts that the OREGONIAN "charged the most exorbitant rates" for the city printing last year. These rates were precisely the same as the Herald now receives. Is it still of opinion that they are "most exorbitant?" Last year it complained that the contract authorized with the OREGONIAN when there was no competition, was "a piece of favoritism;" how shall we characterize the contract lately made with the Herald at the same rates paid last year, after this paper had both offered to compete for the printing, asking that it be let to the lowest bidder, and when this was refused, had offered to do the work for half the money the Herald now receives? Does not this action show a "piece of favoritism as patent as was ever practised," either by "honest" or dishonest men? No try whether it was an intentional "piece of favoritism" or not, we submitted the final proposition to do the printing for half rates. The rejection of this offer showed a determination on the part of a majority of the Council to give the printing to the Herald, and this no doubt would have been done had the rates it proposed to charge been double what it has contented to receive. Which paper, then, has been the object of "favoritism?"

The city government of Portland has been for some months practically in the hands of the Democrats. By adroit and unscrupulous management, every step of which is easily traceable, they have succeeded in what they could not have accomplished had the voters of the city had an opportunity to declare their will. As soon as the Council had succeeded in electing a Mayor who is opposed politically to a large majority of the citizens of Portland, and as soon as Councilman Hallock had obtained supreme control over a majority of the body of which he is a member, a course of systematic proscription was commenced against all officers of the city who are not Democrats Two members, Rosenheim and Feehheimer, who have professed to be Union men or Republicans, but who are Democrats if they are anything, have given countenance to this proceeding. When Mayor Holmes took his present position, he rushed into print with a long message attacking the former administration of the city, characterizing it as "ruinously expensive," insinuating that the people's money had been wasted, and recommending immediate and radical retrenchment. Not content with relating facts, since this course would not have answered his purposes, he made the most exaggerated statements of the cost of the various departments of the city government. Several of the officers, including Recorder Hoffman, Marshal Hoyt and Surveyor Burrage, who were attacked in this outrageous manner, came out with detailed statements of the expenses of their several departments, showed the utter falsity of the Mayor's representations, so far as these representations related to them, and triumphantly vindicated themselves from the imputations which, with such dishonest recklessness, had been cast upon them. Unable to reply, Mr. Mayor Holmes found refuge in silence; and his organ, which had printed his slanderous message with such gusto, being also unable to say a word in the Mayor's defense, did not make the attempt, and allowed him to stand convicted of this most unscrupulous effort to manufacture capital for himself and his party by misrepresenting his opponents.

To mislead the public and accomplish objects they had in view, these men when they came into power, began to vociferate most vigorously for "economy and retrenchment." This trick was too transparent to escape exposure, and every attempt these pretended economists have made to build up their own fortunes by assailing the public conduct of others, has been refuted triumphantly, and has failed ridiculously. Their efforts throughout have had a partisan object. They had hoped by keeping up an incessant clamor about the extraordinary expenses of the city, by assailing its past administration, by charging its officers with wastefulness, by throwing out insinuations both against the conduct of individual officers and Council Committees, to establish a character for themselves as the true custodians of the city's interests and thus ensure their own retention in office. This was the instantly detected swing of Mayor Holmes' "retrenchment mea sure," and this accounts for the course which the Democratic leader of the Council has pursued so sedulously for several months With this object in view, he has dragooned weaker men into his service, until they are now quite as tractable as he had ever hoped to make them But this party, notwithstanding its covert insinuations and direct charges against the public conduct of its opponents, has failed to substantiate a single one either of the former or of the latter, against them

In the message to which we have several times referred, the Mayor said "I would recommend that for this year the city printing and advertising be let to the lowest responsible bidder" This was when His Honor was in a mood for retrenchment. Does he still think it should be let to the lowest bidder? Does he intend to veto the ordinance that was passed last week giving the printing to the Herald, without allowing competition at rates which that paper last year called "exorbitant," and which His Honor himself, less than three months ago, characterized as a portion of the "ruinous expenses" of the city? It would not be hazarding much to venture the prediction that he will not veto it. He and his friends are not so much in favor of "economy" as they were a little while ago An opportunity having occurred to show "a piece of favoritism," they eagerly seize it, and by their actions coolly inform the public that all their talk about retrenchment was the merest pretense and sham Their organ must be sustained, and to quote its own language, "the property holders must pay no matter what the cost" Hence the predetermination to give it the city patronage at any price it might choose to name

The public will remember that this Council which is so strongly in favor of retrenchment, refused to lessen what the Mayor calls "the expenses which are eating up the city" by submitting the public printing to competition —and that Messrs Feehheimer Hallock, O'Connor and Rosenheim are the members who defeated the proposition to let this work to the lowest bidder The public will also remember that this Council which is so strongly in favor of retrenchment refused to entertain a proposition for the printing to be done at half the rates now paid, and that Messrs Feehheimer, Hallock, O'Connor, Rosenheim and Zeiber are the members who voted this proposition down Our citizens will therefore be able to see who they are that favor actual retrenchment in city affairs and who they are that stand ready to give "jobs" to their political friends These last named members could not, however, do this thing "above board," but found it necessary to justify their conduct by intentional misrepresentation Mr Councilman Feehheimer arose in his place in the Council last Friday evening and stated that the offer of the Herald for the ensuing year was only about half what was paid last year to the OREGONIAN, and that it should therefore be accepted. When it is stated that the ordinance he was then advocating was, so far as compensation was concerned, copied verbatim from the ordinance of last year, all who care to do so can draw their own conclusions as to the motive which prompted this obviously intentional misrepresentation

Mr Councilman Hallock, if his organ reports him correctly, was in one of his most benevolent and magnanimous moods on this occasion The city he declared, "was not a beggar" that it should be anxious to get its work done for small pay We greatly fear the eloquent Councilman had not read the plaintive message of His Honor, the Mayor, which attempted to show that the city by mal administration had been almost reduced to beggary. Or had he forgotten both the Mayor's message and his own previous efforts depicting the distressed condition of the city and showing the necessity for closer economy? By listening to him for several months past down to last Friday evening, one would have been led to imagine that the city was actually a "beggar," for whose relief he was making pitiful appeals But on this occasion he was more hopeful. He scorned the idea that the city was a mendicant, and cried shame upon the member who would resort to such a "dishonorable trick' as that of endeavoring to get the work of the city done for smaller pay than he thought his own pet organ ought to receive! He was even of the opinion that those who offer to do work at less rates than other people, would "cheat" their employers and "bear watching!" He was immeasurably astonished that "the gentleman who intr roduced the proposition should lend himself to such tr ransactions!" Proceeding with his virtuous declamation he presently had something to say against "r ratting," which remarks his organ, with infinite pleasure, reported in full. Perhaps the Councilman was not aware that the organ for which he was making this appeal, is itself a dirty "ratting" establishment, and that it was the first newspaper in this city to cut down printers wages from the rates at which they had stood for years It strikes us that under this state of facts the less these parties can say on this point the better. If the eloquent Councilman is looking up a subject for another rhetorical display like his last, he would do well to avoid further mention of this matter. Let him stick to his attitudes, but be more careful of the drift of his discourse. As for ourselves and friends, we believe we shall be able to outlive the "dishonor" of having endeavored to save money to the city, and of having made an effort, (though an unsuccessful one) to defeat "the most patent piece of favoritism that was ever practised by men professing to be honest" Did they "fear the result of the coming election" when they "hastened to make this private contract" with the Herald, and was this the cause of their precipitate action?

It is understood at San Francisco that the Western Telegraph enterprise has been abandoned. The clerks, officers and employees of the expedition have been discharged The success of the Atlantic Cable, and the probability that other cables will be laid, has discouraged the attempt to push the line northward across Behring's Straits and thence to China

A man named Dunkerly was thrown from a horse at Walla Walla, and before he could get out of the way was run over by a wagon He was very badly hurt, but it is hoped he will recover.

WARREN'S DIGGINGS AND FLORENCE

The following from the Lewiston Journal of the 22d inst., gives a view of the condition of the mining camps of North Idaho

Messenger W P Hunt arrived with the express from Warren's and Florence on Tuesday, having left Warren's on Thursday of last week at noon

He reports having experienced the most severe trip of the season. The cold for most part of the time has been severe, and wind and snow has so affected his eyes that he suffered much

He reports all business locked up at Warren's by the frost and snow, and the miners in camp mostly spend their time in their cabins The snow averages about seven feet in depth in Warren s basin, and from that depth to fifteen feet on the mountains; So great a body of snow was never before known in that region since the discovery of the camp by white men Warren s basin generally has not more than three or four feet at one time on the ground during the winter

The depth is proportionately as great at Florence, and two or three feet deep at the Meadow creek quartz ledges There is no snow on Salmon river below Allison s Ranch Camas prairie is still covered with at out one foot of snow On Craig s mountain it is about four or five feet deep and gradually lessens in depth extending to Sweetwater, where the depth is none The trails lands between this place and Sweetwater are still covered with snow

The work on the Liddell & Hapster tunnel is suspended, owing to some misunderstanding between the contractors and the Superintendent It is strongly hoped that the work will soon be resumed and the tunnel pushed to completion.

The cold weather and snow have prevented any further work on the wire bridge at the Meadow creek crossing of Salmon river, also on the trail leading the reform to the summit on the South side of Salmon river

The Salmon river trail from John Day s to French creek is being progressed steadily and prospects a completion for early spring travel

The French creek ferry is now in the possession of W H Knott who claims the ownership and promises good advantages for crossing footmen and animals as soon as the season opens

The cold has interrupted to some extent the work on the ditches and flumes along Salmon river though the work is progressing Mining for the two weeks past on the river has been somewhat checked by the cold, though never boen entirely suspended

No stock has yet been lost on Camas prairie, though they begin to show the effect of scarcity of food and shelter since the snow and cold

Messenger Hunt deserves great credit for the energy he has displayed in making this last trip He has traveled much the greater part of the distance on snow shoes On Monday he traveled nearly fifty miles on snow shoes and carried both mail and express upon his back. But few men can appreciate the hardships these mountain ex presmen endure in making their trips during the winter Hunt reports a few Warren s men s journing at the Warm Springs, and a few parties out hunting, for game is abundant along Salmon river having been driven out of the mountains by the snow Mountain sheep are plenty along the cliffs but are very wary of the hunter

All kinds of provisions are abundant in the camps and miners with appetite well satisfied, are becoming impatient for the opening of spring so that their work may be resumed

The Walla Walla Statesman of the 22d inst says

In our issue of last week, we gave the particulars of the murder of Judge Stewart, at Colville and the circumstances attending the horrible affair We hear now that after the preliminary examination six of the soldiers were held to answer the charge of murder—two of them named Clancy and Murphy as principals and the four others as accessories Murphy and Clancey were proved to have had muskets with them at the time of the killing, and hence they were held as principals The six soldiers were fully committed to answer the charge of murder

A VALUABLE INVENTION

THE UNDERSIGNED CALLS THE ATTENTION of smokers to the celebrated

PATENT DOUBLE-TUBE PIPES

Which he is now importing and which are recommended to all smokers It is peculiar merit consists in the use of TWO TUBES the one for the smoke alone and the other for the passage of the saliva and the nicotine to the cup at the bottom whence it is discharged The smoke being thus kept clear of contact with the saliva, is always delicious and pure in its odor, and the collected matter which renders all other pipes offensive being entirely removed, the pipe will always continue sweet and agreeable It gives to the smoke the pure exhalation of the tobacco free from its noxious qualities; it possesses merits never before obtained in pipes

A leading eastern journal says of this pipe "Its merits are incontestably proved by the fact that It is permanently superseding all others in use"

Another great advantage in this pipe is that the smoker can easily take it to pieces If the draught becomes obstructed you can unscrew the stem and re-open the upper tube of the bowl with at emptying it of tobacco

(Successors to Kellogg, Houston & Company)

CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000!

Directors:

JOHN PARROTT, CHAS. H McLANE,
WM D RALSTON, A HAYWARD,
LOUIS A CARNETT.

LOUIS A CARNETT President and Manager.
JOHN HEWSTON Jr. Chemist and Superintendent.

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY improved their Refining Works, and introduced many other important improvements, are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their terms of doing business

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of material and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world, and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the bullion and commercial value of bullion

Their charges hereafter will be as follows:

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS

One eighth of one per cent, (heretofore a quarter) for all amounts over $1,000, and two dollars for any smaller sum Returns made in twenty four hours

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $1,000, and one-eighth of one per cent, for all amounts over that sum, and one per cent on the silver contained Returns made in twenty four hours.

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS.

On bullion under 500 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce
On bullion from 500 @ 600 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce.
On bullion from 600 @ 750 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce
On bullion from 750 @ 940 parts gold, 8 cents per ounce
Above 950 the only charge will be for coinage But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars

FOR COINING GOLD

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—a half of one per cent—and which is paid by us to that institution But there will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us.

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY EIGHT HOURS

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate customary at the Mint.

Gold bars of other Assayers, in good standing will be cashed by us at the highest market rates.

Dust and bullion can be forwarded to us from any part of the country, and returns made through Wells Fargo & Co s Express

CHARGES AT U S BRANCH MINT

For the convenience of those not familiar with the terms of the Mint we subjoin the tariff of charges now in force at that institution

For refining bullion under 300 parts gold 3 cents per ounce
For refining bullion from 300 @ 600 parts gold, 5 cents per ounce
For refining bullion from 600 @ 750 parts gold, 7 cents per ounce
For refining bullion from 750 @ 930 parts gold, 11 cents per ounce
For refining bullion from 930 @ 940 parts gold 14 cents per ounce
The charge for coinage is half of the per cent and the charge for making fine silver bars the same
Comparing the net value of deposits for coinage with the proceeds of unparted gold bars adding the market—amount to be sold at the following par rates to equal the deposited for coinage

850 par to equal Mint return at refining charge of 14 cents
815 par to equal Mint return at refining charge of 14 cents
856 par to equal San Francisco A & R Works return at refining charge of 8 cents mh1d2p&m

A WATCHMAN ASSAULTED AND STABBED.—From Mr A G. Brown who came down from Salem yesterday we obtain the following particulars of an attempt at burglary and the stabbing of a private watchman at Salem, Monday night About eleven o'clock of that night as Mr A M Hurley a private watchman was passing the book store of Parrish & Yeaton he came upon a man engaged in cutting the window sash for the evident purpose of gaining into the store It being the special business of Mr Hurley to inquire into such proceedings he stepped up to the man and tapped him on the shoulder asking "what are you doing here? The man without uttering a word instantly drew a knife and made a tremendous lunge at Hurley's breast, the knife passing entirely through his clothing and a thick pocket memorandum book and penetrating the flesh just over the region of the heart The blow was so well directed and heavy as to knock Mr Hurley down. The man instantly jumped off of the side walk into the street and ran off Mr H was somewhat injured by the concussion but was not seriously cut thanks to the pocket-book He had no weapon of any kind, but had he been ever so well armed and desperate that he had no more suddenness and desperate that he had no more sudden and desperate that he had no more chance for assault was so sudden and desperate that he had no chance for distance or escape. The would be burglar had run the muscles of the sash and had broken some of the same have accomplished an entrance

SMALL-POX AT THE DALLES.—A correspondent writing from the Dalles, March 20th, concerning the case of small pox at that place, says:

Mr J J Porter arrived here last night from Portland, badly affected with the small-pox. I saw him at 11 o'clock to-day and I learned as follows: He has just come from the States, (east) has not heard of the disease anywhere on the route There was no one sick with it on the steamer the other side of Portland, he had been on board the Continental twenty odd days, he knew or heard of He was perfectly well while in San Francisco and did not feel unwell until he had been on board the Continental twenty four hours or more When he went on board the steamer he thought the air very impure, especially in the stateroom where he slept He, with the man occupying the room with him, and sleeping in the upper berth [illegible] in the night to look for the cause They found on the floor directly under the lower berth, pulled it out and [illegible] fraction of teeth underneath. The next morning they [illegible] in the passage-way The next morning they [illegible] both sick and have been sick since that time [illegible] What the infection in that blanket, and how [illegible] there! This man has small pox in its distinct form and will, without doubt, soon recover. He has been removed to the pest-house two miles from town where he will receive good care and attention So his friends [illegible] say on his account His home is in Rye [illegible]

A PHILOSOPHER WANTED.—Several times within the last few weeks, the kerosene lamp chimneys used in our city have exploded in a most unaccountable manner [illegible] last evening just before dusk one of them was heard to snap and the broken glass to fly with con[illegible] force against the reflector above and the case be[illegible] An immediate examination showed that an oval [illegible] was thrown out from one side of the chimney just [illegible] about two inches wide and three inches long [illegible], otherwise, uninjured, but of course [illegible] No one was in the room and the lamp had not been trimmed or touched for more than fifteen [illegible] The oil was nearly exhausted in the reservoir A [illegible] another chimney burst in the same manner [illegible] an hour or two before, but had not been filled [illegible] about fifteen minutes before, but had not [illegible] In the last mentioned case, the chimney [illegible] to the lamp, but in the other case, it was [illegible] standing upon the lamp, without, [illegible] anything else A philosopher is wanted [illegible] who can satisfactorily account for this [illegible] body need apply, however, who can [illegible]

[illegible] Wisconsin Court has decided that a [illegible] to chastise his wife to "a reasonable ex[illegible] A very interesting and important question then [illegible] what is a "reasonable extent?" and will the [illegible] "extent" in one case govern in all cases? Does the "extent" mean shutting the wife in her own [illegible] lock and key or does it permit the husband [illegible] a regular whacking? May he "flout her in the face" or climb her "specs" with his fist, according to the rules to be observed by husbands with obstreperous wives, with such particularity that every man [illegible] to chastise the partner of his bosom, with a certainty of being within the judicial [illegible] Does every chastised wife might have the satisfaction of knowing to dot whether her lord gave her [illegible] the law allows As the decision stands, there [illegible] much danger as ever in the enjoyment of the chastising one's wife An interesting question [illegible] and wives, still remains as provokingly [illegible] as ever.

[illegible] Variety Store.—In these days of [illegible] goods, the firm of Stone & Norman, corner [illegible] Washington streets, keeps even pace with [illegible] Yesterday, we found Mr, Norman open[illegible] a beautiful lot of fancy goods, just re[illegible] addition to which they have, also, just re[illegible] finest brands of chewing and smoking tobacco [illegible] particularly fine—every style of meer[illegible] amber mouth-pieces, amber and meer[illegible] holders, fancy cigar stands, watch bearers, [illegible] steel-bowed purses, toys, work boxes, and [illegible] endless variety of goods. Messrs Stone & Nor[illegible] are firmly determined to be the retail and jobbing [illegible] of the city, in variety goods Mr. Stone is still in [illegible] and still buying

[illegible]—Mr. Wm Grooms, Assistant [illegible] District of Oregon, is engaged in sup[illegible]liable to U S Income tax, with blank [illegible] Those who receive them will do well to no[illegible] the blank forms of these blanks, the following "Take [illegible] for the purposes of the acts of Congress, you [illegible] to make out a list or lists, according to the [illegible] as far as the same may be applicable to [illegible] and deliver the same to me, at my office, [illegible] from the date hereof, or an addition of [illegible] per centum will be made to the proper entry" [illegible] the above notice, will be found the date in [illegible] which the ten day's time allowed begins [illegible] to attention to this requirement will avoid [illegible]

The Snow Shower.

BY WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

Stand here by my side and turn, I pray
On the lake below thy gentle eyes;
The clouds hang over it heavy and gray
And dark and silent the waters lie
And out of the frozen mist the snow
In wavering flakes begins to flow
Flake after flake
They sink in the dark and silent lake

See how in a living swarm they come
From the chambers beyond that misty vail—
Some hover awhile in air and some
Rush prone from the sky like Summer hail
All dropping swiftly or settling slow
Meet and are still in the depth below,
Flake after flake
Dissolved in the dark and silent lake

Here delicate snow stars out of the cloud
Come floating downward in airy play
Like spangles dropped from the glistening crowd
That whiten by night the milky way
There broader and burlier masses fall;
The sullen waters bury them all
Flake after flake
All drowned in the dark and silent lake

And some as on tender wings they glide
From their chilly birth climb and dip and gray
Are joined in their fall and side by side
Come clinging along their unsteady way
As friend with friend, or husband and wife
Make hand in hand the passage to life
Each mated flake
Soon sink in the dark and silent lake

Lo! while we are gazing in swifter haste
Stream down the snows till the air is white
As myriads by myriads, madly chased
They fling themselves from their shadowy height
The frail, fair creatures of middle sky
What speed they make with the grave so nigh
Flake after flake
To lie in the dark and silent lake

I see in thy gentle eyes a tear
They turn to me in sorrowful thought,
Though thinkest of friends the good and dear,
Whosilved for a time, and now are not,
Like these fair children of cloud and frost
That glisten a moment and then are lost,
Flake after flake—
All lost in the dark and silent lake

Yet look again, for the clouds divide,
A gleam of blue on the waters lies,
And far away, on the mountain side,
A sunbeam falls from the opening skies
But the hurrying host that flew between
The cloud and the water no more is seen
Flake after flake,
All rest in the dark and silent lake

A Close Shave on Board the Tien Tsing

"It was rather a close shave, that!" said the Colonel, knocking the ashes off his cigar, and wiping his long mustache, after a pull at his brandy and soda-water. The poor fellow was broke afterwards, and died, I heard the other day, so I don't mind telling you how it happened. It was during one of our early campaigns in China. I was only a sub then, though expecting every day to find myself gazetted to a company of "our," for the lover had knocked over a good many of our seniors, and just till the last, I had got off with only a slight touch of it. But after a long turn of out-post duty, in the middle of those tearful swamps, I laid on my back by and-by faitly, and, when I was about half dead, got invalided home. Home I never expected to reach. My only chance, I knew, was to catch the next mail steamer from Hong Kong, and the journey down there, weak as I was, I believed would do for me. However, I determined to risk it, though it was more than doubtful whether I should get there, by land, before the Peninsular and Oriental boat started.

At the eleventh hour, a fellow I knew slightly, a countryman of my own, a commissioner or something in the China service, came to me and offered to me a passage to Hong Kong, from some little port on the coast, where a Chinese gunboat—the Tien-Tsing she was called—was waiting for him. He was ordered home too; and, being a swell, the government had ordered round the Tien Tsing to take him. We were to start the next night—it was only a run of some ten hours—and should catch the steamer at Hong Kong comfortably.

I needn't tell you I accepted Farquhar's offer like a shot. It was too good to be refused

The next morning found Farquhar and myself on board the Tien-Tsing.

A rakish-looking little gunboat she was; English built, of course, and commanded by an Englishman, too, in Chinese pay—a fellow who had been something or other, I never knew what, in our navy. His name was Gurnock. And a very queer fish I thought Captain Gurnock was, as he came out of the deck house to receive us. A tall, thin individual, bearded to the eyes, in a nondescript sort of uniform, a cutlass at his side and a six shooter in his belt, looking more like a stage pirate than anything else.

And what eyes! I can see them now. Directly he looked at me, I guessed how he came to have left ours for the Celestial service.

I suppose you fellows know that whenever a man has had the delirium tremens—or "D. T.," as the India-going people call it—his eyes almost invariably tell tales. They get a look after a touch of D. T., which nothing else that I know of, can give them. Some fellows of course show it more than others; but the look is there ever afterwards, and, to an old hand, it's perfectly unmistakable.

Well, when I looked at Captain Gurnock first, I thought his eyes looked queer, but the moment he looked at me I knew what made him look so. Our friend had been a bad case of D. T., oftener than once perhaps.

And Captain Gurnock certainly drank a good deal of rum the evening we came on board the gunboat.

We all three, he, I, and Farquhar the commissioner, sat in the deck-cabin till about half-past eleven. We had elected to sleep there all night on two old sofas under musquito curtains, in preference to going down to be stifled below—that is Farquhar and I. The Captain said he should be on deck during the passage, and take his chance of a nap The sea was as smooth as glass, and we would run down to Hong Kong in eight hours easily, he added. This was good news No fear of missing the mail-boat now, and as I rolled myself onto my sofa, and secured the curtains about me, I congratulated myself once more on having fallen in with Farquhar.

He had, like myself, partly undressed, and, cheroot in mouth, turned in on the opposite sofa. Between us was the little cabin table, whereon we had deposited our revolvers.

Out there, you know, a fellow never dreams of going to sleep without a revolver handy under his pillow but that night, of course, we know there was very little likelihood of a pistol being wanted in such a hurry.

The gunboat had got under way, and was skimming the quiet sea like a sea-bird. Farquhar and I laid awake a while, chatting and smoking, and telling one another our yarns of the country and the "pig-tails" till insensibly we both dropped off to sleep.

I was dreaming of home pleasantly enough, fancying myself strolling in the summer twilight by the loch by Cousin Annie's side, when a row on deck half woke me A noise of scuffling and stamping, and then a pistol shot.

I was broad awake when I heard that. My first thought was that we had come across a pirate junk, who had mistaken us for an unarmed dispatch boat, and, gathering myself together, I was just about to spring from my sofa and secure my revolver, which just lay out of my reach on the table, when suddenly the cabin door was burst open, and, with a yell that made my blood run cold, so absolutely unearthly was it, a man with a drawn cutlass in one hand and a smoking six-shooter in the other, rushed in whirling the heavy cutlass round his head, and blaspheming and yelling like a fiend. This man followed an imaginary foe all around the deck-house, giving point and slashing away like a madman.

It was Gurnock, foaming at the mouth, his eyes blazing like carbuncles and starting out of his head, gone mad or taken suddenly with a fit of D. T.

Suddenly he halted midway between the two sofas As I met the horrible glare of his eyes, I felt that it was all up with me Even if I had been a match for him—and I was rather weaker than a kitten—the close-fastened musquito curtains would have hindered my spring, and once entangled in them, he might have cut me down without any trouble. To reach my revolver was out of the question, at the first attempt he would have "potted" me to a moral, and to try and gain the deck was hopeless The frightened crew had probably bolted below when the first shot which had woke me up, was fired

What was I to do? It was hard after going through the whole affair without a scratch, to be murdered by a maniac at last—but that that would be my fate, I never doubted for a moment

I was sitting upright on my little sofa, not daring to move—and scarcely daring to breathe Thoughts of the past—thoughts of those near and dear to me, whom I was never to see again mingled with strange speculations as to who might get the death vacancy, flashed like lightning through my brain.

Feeble as I was then, the sweat of this death agony poured down my face like drops of blood Muttering such words of prayer as men's lips fashion in their direst extremity, I fell back on my pillow.

I was just in time. Another second and a bullet would have blown my brains out; for at the moment when my head dropped, the madman fired point blank at me

I heard the thud of the ball as it buried itself in the bulkhead at my side, and felt the wind of it across my face

With the instinct of self preservation, I lay motionless as a corpse.

One sharp slash of the cutlass and the mosquito curtains round me were cut down And then—then I knew that Gurnock was standing over me Never shall I forget the moments of horrible suspense which followed

Even now sometimes in my sleep I feel that agony once again To die thus I whom the Russian bullets had spared—who had since carried my life in my hand as often and so long—to die like this helpless defenceless after all!

The whole thing didn't occupy the half of the time it has taken me to tell it to you but each one of those few moments during which Gurnock bent over me seemed an age

Death itself was better than this death agony, surely More than once I had determined to spring on him, and make one struggle, however feeble, for dear life And I think I should have done so if a slight noise behind him had not startled the madman He turned sharply round at once, and I opened my eyes What followed passed so quickly that it was not till afterwards that I fully understood it all

Farquhar had been roused, like myself by the pistol shot but sleeping more heavily than I it had taken him longer to understand what all the row was about When however he saw Gurnock standing, cutlass in hand, beside my sofa he knew he had but one chance to save me and himself With his pillow in one hand he crept cautiously to the foot of his berth, which was nearest the table whereon we had both laid our revolvers and pushing aside the curtain stretched out his hand to grasp the weapon nearest him The slight noise he made in so doing attracted Gurnock's attention

Raising his pistol, the latter pulled the trigger again The hammer fell but no report followed The barrel was either unloaded or had missed fire This saved Farquhar's life. Flinging the cushion which had served him for a pillow, and which he still held in his left hand, full in the madman's face as the latter rushed at him he ran in under his guard and with the heavy butt of his own revolver, stopped Gurnock "in his tracks by one well directed blow between the eyes

But the fight wasn't all out of the Captain yet, and he managed to drag his adversary down with him I had sprung to my feet the instant Gurnock's back was turned, and now kicked away the heavy cutlass which had fallen from his hand as he went down

Once more—crash! came the butt end of Farquhar's pistol, and then the other lay motionless And we were saved

"It was touch and go, though, Ramsey!" Farquhar said to me, when tardy assistance had come, and, bound hand and foot, our would be murderer lay not dead by any means, as I had at first supposed but breathing heavily in a sort of stupor "It was touch and go, for you see no one could tell that that barrel of his was not empty, and I was afraid to fire for fear of hitting you However, all's well that ends well We shall be at home in less than two hours, take a pull at my flask and turn in again, in the meantime. This beggar won't give us any more trouble, and the crew will get on just as well without him I suppose they are used to this sort of thing" And in ten minutes more the commissioner was fast asleep again, as though nothing unusual had happened We caught the steamer all right, and came back to England together—he and I The voyage home set me up again as good as new, but it was a long time before I could turn in at night without a disagreeable reflection of what happened to me on board the Tien Tsing

"And Captain Gurnock?" asked some one, as the Colonel paused, "what became of him? I suppose your friend the commissioner got him broke?"

"Well, no, he didn't! He was still insensible when we left him Farquhar thought he'd been punished enough, so he told me he should say nothing about the affair. It wouldn't have been much use if he had, I dare say The Captain was a good one to fight, and, for the rest, there were queerer fish among the fellows the mandarins got to do their work even than he

"However, he got broke, as I told you, for something or other afterwards, and died not long ago"

Arrival of Surratt.

Judge Fisher, of the Criminal Court of the District of Columbia, on the 19th of February, issued a bench warrant as follows

The United States of America to the Marshal of the District of Columbia, greeting

We command you that you take John H Surratt into Washington county, if he shall be found within the county of Washington, in your said district, and him safely keep so that you have his body before the Criminal Court of the District of Columbia, at the City of Washington, immediately to answer unto the United States of and concerning a certain felony by him committed, as it is presented

Hereof fail not at your peril, and have you then and there this writ.

On the same afternoon, between four and five o'clock, and soon after notice by the Navy Department of its readiness to deliver Surratt to the civil authorities, Marshal Gooding proceeded to the Navy Yard with the above warrant, and having exhibited it to Admiral Radford, the latter, with a guard of marines, repaired to the Swatara, and soon returned, bringing with them the prisoner, whom he delivered to the Marshal.

Surratt was dressed in Zouave uniform, such as he wore when he was captured in Alexandria, Egypt, and handcuffed Having been placed in a hack, with an armed guard, he was driven to the jail, which he reached at five o'clock in the evening, and was placed in the custody of the Warden, who has lately fitted up three iron clad cells, one on each floor, which are used for the confinement of murderers and desperate characters. He was placed in one of these cells, from which there is no possible chance of escape, and therefore there need be no doubt about his safe keeping No one will be allowed to see him except his counsel and the officers of the prison.

On the 16th, Henry St Marie, the witness by whose evidence the identity of Surratt, the alleged accomplice of Booth, Asteroth and Paine were determined, arrived at New York by the steamer St. Laurentz, and went direct to Washington by the evening train. St Marie is a French Canadian of fair appearance, quick, keen, black eye, and general look of intelligence He states that when teaching in Maryland he made the acquaintance of Surratt and Weichman, the chief witness at the conspiracy trial, and although the acquaintances at no time attained to intimacy, he was struck with certain physical peculiarities that no disguise could affect St Marie went to Europe and entered the Papal Guard as a Zouave Shortly after he entered the service he recognized the validity of the Italian proverb which says "Romo once seen the faith is lost," and forsaking his early belief, embraced that of the Protestants While attending a festival St. Marie met Surratt, who approached and asked him if he was not an American He replied that he was, and whisperingly said "You remind me of an American named Surratt, are you he?" "Oh no" replied Surratt "All the better for you," rejoined St Marie Subsequently, when excited with wine, Surratt confessed that he was the man of whom St Marie spoke, and at various times indulged in braggadocio concerning the Canadian raids, the assassination plot and other cognate matters, greatly to the astonishment of St Marie and the delight of his associates, many of whom were Canadian Refugees and raiders like himself

From the narrative, it seems that St Marie became quite intimate with Surratt, who, though only a private in the Guard, was well supplied with funds, and gave the impression of perfect serenity—a serenity and security that could only be procured by absolute protection Availing himself of the constant indiscretion of his comrade, St Marie thoroughly informed himself of matters of great significance, which can properly be brought out only upon the trial of Surratt These matters he laid before Gen King our Minister at Rome, who reported them to Mr Seward By direction of the State Department, Gen. King took such prompt steps with the Roman Government as secured the immediate arrest of Surratt who was identified upon the oath of St Marie

The subsequent history of the case is familiar to the public Surratt's escape and jump of thirty seven feet from the prison, the arrest and discharge of St Marie the flight of Surratt to Alexandria, his rearrest by Mr Hale and his incarceration on the United States steamer Swatara When he was taken on board the Swatara in irons he recognized St Marie, who stood among the spectators He was taken at once to a cabin prepared expressly for him, and although guarded day and night is allowed such food and personal necessities as he demands, and may make him comfortable

HANDSOMELY DONE.—General Sheridan sent, a few days ago, to Miss Rebecca Wright of Winchester, Va an elegant gold watch, an exquisitely wrought chain, a brooch and charms The brooch is of gold beautifully wrought into a gauntlet, and set with pearls

One of the charms, as a correspondent informs us, is a sword set with very valuable diamonds Accompanying this magnificent gift was an autograph letter from General Sheridan, acknowledging Miss Wright's services, which led to the General's success at Winchester in the battle of the 19th of September 1864

Miss Wright was a young Quakeress, well known for her faith in a united nationality, and understood to be willing to aid the cause at any sacrifice When General Sheridan was in great doubt how to act, he sent a scout to the city, who writing upon a slip of paper which she enclosed in tinfoil directed it to be placed in the mouth, that it might escape the enemy's search, and thus furnished the information that enabled the General to achieve his victory.—N Y Evening Post.

THE HAIR.—The ordinary length of the hair of the head in woman varies from twenty inches to a yard, in some instances even longer than that, but they are of an unusual occurrence, its weight from five to eight ounces A cotemporary relates an instance where the hair on a lady's head attained the measurement of two yards in length But its proper length for texture and strength should not exceed twenty four inches, and its value as long hair is much depreciated in price when it falls shorter It has been calculated by Withoff that the beard grows at the rate of a line and a half per week, which gives a length of six and a half inches in the course of the year, while for a man eighty years of age twenty-seven feet would have fallen before the razor We are informed that the beard of the Burgomaster Hans Steininger was so long that upon one occasion, having forgotten to fold up the same, he trod upon it as he ascended to the council chamber at Brunn, and was thereby thrown down and killed And still further we may cite from Eble that at the Prince's Court at Eldam there is a full length portrait of a carpenter whose beard was nine feet long, so that when engaged at work he was obliged to carry it in a bag. In the Industrial Exhibition of 1862 there were exhibited specimens of human hair taken from the heads of English, French and Italian ladies, the longest specimen having been cut from one of our own countrywomen It was a lock of jet black hair, and measured seventy four inches in length.—English Paper

DR. HENLEY'S Fountain of Life!

GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER!

IN EVERY PROGRESSIVE SCIENCE PERIODS ARrive when a new direction is imparted to its operations which changes the whole aspect of the science The present is an epoch of this kind and this great Remedy is now offered to the public, in connection with the theory on which it is based in direct effect an entire revolution in the treatment of the diseases of

by rescinding the disease entirely from the blood. The FOUNTAIN OF LIFE is composed entirely of vegetable extracts it contains no Mercury or other mineral substance

The Proprietor and Discoverer of this Sovereign Remedy CHALLENGES THE WORLD to furnish anything from the days of Esculapius down to the present time, in the arcana of Medical Science which can vie with or excel the intrinsic properties of this Great Blood Purifier He alone has been tested with the happiest effect in the most desperate cases of Scrofula that baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians in the world No matter what form the dreadful disease of SCROFULA and KING'S EVIL may have assumed it can in no way be more safely and certainly arrested in its progress than by HENLEY'S GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER Thousands have been swept into their graves who had they made a timely use of the FOUNTAIN OF LIFE, might now be enjoying the blessings of life and health It requires no article of vegetable extract intrinsic value to enable itself During the storm ordeal of public experiment the FOUNTAIN OF LIFE has stood the test fair and not been found wanting

☞ Dr HENLEY guarantees to CURE any case of SCROFULA or KING'S EVIL in the world and eradicate the disease entirely from the system or no charge made —provided they will secure him his pay when they are cured

FOR REFERENCE:

I would refer you to L L Peck of Portland, Oregon and numbers of others, as to what a miraculous effect it has had in a short time in cases that had baffled the skill of physicians for years

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering from the consequence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of those horrible life-destroying maladies—for they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of horrible symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical resources; Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, nightly pollutions, the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots unbidden about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, stunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, cough, consumption, night sweats monomania and frequent insanity If relief be not obtained should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure Dr G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co
